A skit on 'save the girl child'

On women empowerment

Girls with slogans saving the girl child

On account of International Girl Child Day (October 11), class X of City International School, Satara Road staged a wonderful play on 'Beti Bachao, Beti Padhao' theme. The play gave a clear message to students on 'Beti Bachao' - a girl child should be saved and allowed to be born. The act spoke against the many incidents of female foeticide in India. It further promulgated the message of 'Beti Padhao' - every girl child should have access to proper education in order to create a better India.

The school reinforced Prime minister Narendra

Modi's mission that advocates for the right of education and a better future for every girl child. The purpose of the skit was as the name suggests, for upheaval of the girl child and the necessity and urgency to save the girl child. It also helped us to realise the fact that maintaining the girl-boy ratio is necessary for the future of the human race.

On this occasion, principal Leena Bhosale addressed the entire school and emphasised to celebrate the birth of the girl child and prevent the infringement of the interest of girls because of outdated and conservative thoughts.
